NATURALLY SPEAKING

By Jerry Davis

Elderberry shrubs are rarely called elder, but that word is good enough, except most listeners are likely to have a misunderstanding and think the notion is old people.

Historians sometimes trace the traditions of using this plant's fruit to tremendous healing power or a treasure-trove of medicine for various ailments.

A well-knowing wild foods gatherer, Euell Gibbons, described elderberry as one of the most abundant and useful fruits, but also the most neglected. Those neglects survived in spite of fruits that could be picked in great umbels instead of individual fruits.

The fruits are tiny, lack acid, and are not palatable as fresh packets. With proper preparation, all these otherwise objectionable qualities disappear. The result is tasted in wine, pie, jelly and many more edibles.

[Dodgeville] Upland Hills Health is excited to announce that two new providers have joined our clinics. Dr. Jared Linebarger joins Dr. Patrick Ryberg as the new General Surgeon in the Dodgeville specialty clinic and Rosie Morrey, APNP, has joined the Upland Hills Health Spring Green Clinic.

Dr. Linebarger attended the University of Indiana School of Medicine, completed his residency at Gundersen Lutheran in LaCrosse, Wis., and then completed a fellowship in surgical breast oncology in Atlanta. His professional interests and experiences include general surgeries, breast cancer surgeries and melanoma surgeries.

He will bring his expertise to patients in Iowa County and surrounding areas starting in September 2019.

Morrey comes to the Upland Hills Health Spring Green Clinic from Mercy Hospital in Iowa, where she has experience working in inpatient care, pre- and post-operative care, emergency care and in family care. Morrey, who is originally from the Muscoda area, is excited to return to the area and build relationships with patients here. She will begin seeing patients in Spring Green, and at the Upland Hills Health Mount Horeb Clinic, in early September.

For many small businesses that sell to consumers, yes it is — provided you think of your local newspaper as not being the major-metro newspaper but the local community or suburban newspaper, where the audience is targeted, the ad rates lower, and the staff motivated to place your marketing message with more of a personal touch.

100+ Women Who Care – Southwest Wisconsin to launch in September

"I'm excited to announce the launch of 100+ Women Who Care ~ Southwest Wisconsin," Kathleen Murphy, founder of this new chapter.

The 100+ Women Who Care ~ Southwest Wisconsin has a very simple goal:

Donate $10,000+ to a local charity in 1 hour!!!

How will we do this? Women members either individually or as part of a team donate $100 each to a local non-profit chosen by a ballot vote of the collective members. 100+ members donating $100 each totaling $10,000+ to a local charity.

"We will offer three (3) different membership opportunities," shares Murphy.

- Individual Membership. Members commit to making quarterly donations of $100 (annual total donation of $400) – given directly to local charities and non-profits serving Iowa, Grant, or Lafayette Counties, in the state of Wisconsin.

- Two-member Team Membership. A team may consist of two (2) members committing to make quarterly donations of $50 each with the overall team donation totaling an annual donation of $400 (one vote per team).

- Four-member Team Membership. A team of four (4) members committing to make quarterly donations of $25 each with the overall team donation totaling an annual donation of $400 (one vote per team).

100+ Women Who Care ~ Southwest Wisconsin will launch on Monday, September 16, 2019. They will meet at Dodge Point Country Club in Mineral Point with registration starting at 5:45 PM. The meeting will host three local non-profits as well as Mary Burke, founder of www.buildinbrave.com. Mary will share with the members how mentorship can help guide your careers and support professional growth plans.

For more information about 100+ Women Who Care ~ Southwest, Wisconsin, contact Kathleen Murphy at murphykathelena@gmail.com or visit its website at: www.100womenwhocaresouthwestwisconsin.org

Make Room For Autumn's Elements This Month

It is overwhelming how many licensed outdoors activities there are to catch the attention of a hunter and dog or a gatherer with a screw driver or a bucket. Many more require limited gear, or just one or more of out sensory systems.

Here's a partial list of what's ongoing: early goose hunting and the early teal season; mourning dove season and ginseng digging; and these may cut into lake sturgeon hook and line season; selected mushroom and nut gathering and fishing related activities.

Add a myriad of seasonal color-changing activities. Numerous events are planned surrounding these activities according to Jason Cotter and his staff in Green and Rock counties. They're creating two new chronic wasting disease sampling stations in Monticello and Brodhead. More details will be forthcoming when archery/crossbow (Sept. 14) and gun deer (Nov. 23) are on the block.

Outdoors enthusiasts are getting some surprises when getting equipment and bird dogs ready for seasons. Head-high cover is common at Oasis Game Farm near New Glarus for hunting gearing-up for October's pheasant season.

Similar conditions await hunters testing their dogs' noses, and flushing and retrieving abilities here and other game farms. One should expect similar conditions on public lands next month and beyond.

With this vegetation comes an excellent crop of stickseed and other hitchhiking plants. Cutting, mowing, and whacking these weeds while still green will save time latter pulling burs from dogs, pants, and hunting vests.

The insect world enjoyed a grand season, too. Hornet nests, the soccer ball-sized nests hanging from trees, buildings and even low vegetation can put a scare into someone riding an ATV pulling a field mower.

While these hornets are somewhat less aggressive than underground-nesters, they can still land a painful and sometimes life-threatening wallop.

Firewood piles also carry a few surprises. Milk snakes are common among neatly-stacked chunks, as well as a bat or two. Hertologists refer to milk snakes as beautiful with brown blotches bordered by black and then gray bands. These woodpile reptiles often hid their heads under their bodies, and then slide if given a chance.

Bats as well as snakes are helpful critters and should not be destroyed unless necessary. Walnut and hickory nut pickers continue to locate that one tree in ten making a return trip worthy. Turkey, squirrel and deer hunters are doing the same while searching for acorns.

Colors continue to impress with purple aster blooms, goldenrod golds and shinning black elderberries. Poison ivy can put on a beautiful display without the pain and suffering if direct and indirect touching is kept at zero.

The next six weeks of trout fishing can be some of the best since January. Meat anglers are about to gear up for walleyes, perch and a few specialty fishes.

Ginseng diggers have put tariffs and price-per-pound numbers aside and are relishing the search and conversations when root is sold fresh. Brush up against the rules pamphlet and respect landowners' signage.

As good as it is, autumn will only get better in the weeks ahead. This is truly the gathering season, whether just to see, admire, or take some of what nature produces home for a meal.

is it worth it to advertise in your local newspaper?

For many small businesses that sell to consumers, yes it is provided you think of your local newspaper as not being the major-metro newspaper

but the LOCAL COMMUNITY PAPER where the audience is targeted, the ad rates lower, and the staff motivated to place your marketing message with more of a personal touch.
